Live Webinar
Seasonality, Superfoods and Other Secrets of Japanese Cuisine

Part of the Living Traditions series

Wed., Dec. 7, 2022
7:00 pm – 8:00 pm ET (4:00 pm—5:00 pm PT)

Living Traditions webinar series is co-presented with the Japan Institute of Portland Japanese Garden and supported by the Government of Japan.

The Food Talk series is sponsored by Kikkoman Corporation.

Japan Society programs are made possible by leadership support from Booth Ferris Foundation and Shiseido Americas. Additional support for cultural programs is provided by an anonymous donor and the Sandy Heck Lecture Fund.
Nancy Singleton Hachisu is a native Californian, Stanford graduate who has lived with her Japanese farmer husband in rural Saitama since 1988. Author of five cookbooks: Japanese Farm Food (Andrews McMeel, Sept. 2012), Preserving the Japanese Way (Andrews McMeel, Aug. 2015), Japan: The Cookbook (Phaidon, April 2018), Food Artisans of Japan (Hardie Grant, Nov. 2019), and Japan: The Vegetarian Cookbook (Phaidon, May 2023). Hachisu’s work has been translated into French, Italian, Spanish, German, Portuguese, Dutch, Chinese, and Japanese. Hachisu appears frequently in Japanese media, documenting her preserving and farm food life as well as visits to artisanal producers in more remote areas of Japan to advocate for Japan’s disappearing food traditions. Recipient of a James Beard award, she has written for The Art of Eating, Lucky Peach, Saveur, Food & Wine, Travel & Leisure, National Geographic Food, BBC Travel, and Fool Magazine. Hachisu also assisted on and appeared in the Salt episode of Netflix’s runaway hit: Salt, Fat, Acid, Heat.

Yumi Komatsudaira is the president of K-Seaweed, a leading ocean greens provider since the 1960’s and an author, recipe developer, food stylist and food photographer for her latest cookbook, Japanese Superfoods: Learn the Secrets of Healthy Eating and Longevity: The Japanese Way! by Tuttle Publishing. (Release date: January 3rd, 2023). She is also a Japanese culinary instructor in the NYC public school system, children’s museums and hospitals, and private cooking classes. She grew up outside Tokyo, playing—and snacking—in her family's seaweed factory. Now based in New York, she travels to Japan often promoting sea vegetables and its health benefits. Instagram: @k_seaweed.

@japansociety  @japansociety  @japansociety
Akiko Katayama is a food writer and Forbes.com columnist based in New York City, and the host and producer of [JAPAN EATS!](http://JAPAN EATS!), a weekly radio show/podcast on [Heritage Radio Network](http://Heritage Radio Network), which introduces Japanese food culture to a global audience. She is a board member of [Heritage Radio Network](http://Heritage Radio Network) as the Host Representative. She is also a director of the non-profit organization The New York Japanese Culinary Academy, which promotes a deeper understanding of Japanese cuisine in the US. She also has appeared as a culinary judge on [Food Network’s Iron Chef America](http://Food Network’s Iron Chef America) regularly and on [Netflix Original The Final Table](http://Netflix Original The Final Table). She is the author of [A Complete Guide to Japanese Cuisine](http://A Complete Guide to Japanese Cuisine). She holds an MBA from New York University Stern School of Business, an MSc from London School of Economics & Political Science, and a Wine & Spirits Education Trust (WSET) Advanced Certificate with Distinction.

Stay up to date on Japan Society’s events by signing up for our eNewsletter!